An Exhibition of the Company's Treasures – New Date Tuesday 13th September 2011

This is a special chance for you, your friends and colleagues to see on our 400th Anniversary, the Company's Treasures displayed in the Wax Chandler's Hall which was postponed from earlier in the year.

On this occasion there will be a further opportunity to see our 400-year old Charter and uniquely our 646-year old Ordinances. Also, since the last exhibition three years ago, we have been presented with a number of new Treasures, which will be on display. Our treasures, which are valued by the Company not only for their worth but also their rarity, workmanship and associations, date from the early 17th century, and include items made of wool, wood, glass, crystal, lead, EPNS, silver, silver-gilt and gold. Amongst the items are books, clothing, furniture, prints, portraits, statuary, regalia, ornaments and tableware. The Company Curator, Liveryman Andrew Hunter Blair and hopefully also the Company Archivist David Hannam will be on hand during the exhibition.

The event provides a perfect background for Liverymen and their guests to meet socially and informally, to chat, reminisce, and look forward, whilst enjoying a buffet lunch with wine.

Please do join us and bring your guests along with you.
